

GREETING DEPEW.

Ovation Down the Bay to the Most Popular New Yorker.

Taken Off the Teutonic by a Host of Eager Admirers.

"Our Chaunceys" Response to a Most Magnificent Welcome.

Dr. Chauncey Mitchell Dewey arrived at Quarantine at 6 o'clock this morning on the White Star steamer Teutonic. He was apparently in the best of health, and looked bronzed and toughened by his travels.

Dr. Dewey was met at Quarantine by the employees of the Central road, who took him aboard the Sam Sloan and brought him up to town, after a rousing reception down the bay.

Mr. Dewey says he enjoyed every minute of his vacation; that he never had a better time in his life, and that he has gained so much in health and strength that he was never before in such good condition for the winter's dinner-making campaign. He will settle down to work at once.

DR. CHAUNCEY M. DEWEY.

The steamboat Sam Sloan, which had been chartered by the employees of the New York Central Railroad Company to go down the bay to meet President Dewey on his return from Europe, at the foot of West 12th street, at daybreak this morning. She had been announced to start at 6 o'clock, on the supposition that the Teutonic would be reported at an early hour, but did not leave the pier until 8:30.

At that hour a party of nearly two hundred were on board, most of them officers and employees of the railroad company. All came provided with overcoats and umbrellas, for the skies were lowering and threatening, and a thick fog overhung the river and upper bay.

THE WELCOMING PARTY.

General Manager Toucer, W. J. Van Arsdale, Vice-President C. C. Clark and J. B. Dutcher, the Committee of Arrangements in charge of the excursion, were among the first to arrive. Among others who came aboard early were Judge N. H. Robertson, General Passenger Agent George H. Daniels, Commodore Frank Loomis, General Traffic Manager H. J. Hayden, Warren Brush of Sing Sing, Major Bundy, John H. Starn, Inspector Williams, Capt. J. H. McCallum, J. H. McCallum, Jr., Dr. W. P. Pierce, A. L. Leonard, Mr. Webb's private secretary, Mr. J. W. Hinkley, T. C. Eastman, G. H. Thompson, G. Pollock, C. Goodman, E. Robinson, F. Hinchey, G. Gluck, G. Hurd, Supt. W. Buchanan, W. W. Anster, N. G. Clifford, J. Freeman, E. J. Richards, C. F. Prince, Frank Cooper, and others. Mr. Dewey's colored valet, J. Collins, ex-Senator J. H. McCallum, of Buffalo; E. W. Rossier, J. P. Lloyd, W. H. Wallace, Quarantine Commissioner E. A. Nichols, C. A. Patterson, R. H. Houghton, C. T. Thallner, E. F. Briggs, J. E. Baker, P. Bland, Auditor W. B. Pollock, Francis Smith, David Graham, F. B. Horgan, C. A. Clark, J. M. Hughes, A. Cox and W. L. Kingman.

While the excursionists were waiting for the word to start, Eben's Seventy-first Regiment Band, which was one of the features of the occasion, kept up a lively tune on the main deck forward, and put every one in a good humor.

Mr. Sloan was on her way down the river with some flying. No news of the Teutonic had been received up to the time of starting, but Mr. Toney and the rest of the Committee decided to go down to Quarantine and wait there.

Just after leaving the White Star pier breakfast was served on the Sloan to the excursionists. There were clam chowder, corn and coffee and hard tack, with grapes, and the lunary crew made away with the provisions in great haste.

The Sloan reached Quarantine shortly after 10 o'clock. Mr. Sloan, who was in command, was met by a large number of men, and the ship was taken to the dock.

THE TEUTONIC REPORTED.

Two long streaks of black smoke were visible on the horizon, and everybody guessed that one of them was the Teutonic. They were not mistaken, for when landing at Quarantine dock, the ship was met by a large number of men, and the ship was taken to the dock.

The Sloan remained about twenty minutes at Quarantine after receiving the news of the Teutonic's appearance. During the interval the Sloan was loaded with provisions, and the ship was taken to the dock.

While the Sloan was making fast to the dock, Quarantine Commissioner E. A. Nichols, C. A. Patterson, R. H. Houghton, C. T. Thallner, E. F. Briggs, J. E. Baker, P. Bland, Auditor W. B. Pollock, Francis Smith, David Graham, F. B. Horgan, C. A. Clark, J. M. Hughes, A. Cox and W. L. Kingman.

the ship as she how to opposite Quarantine. The cheering and shouting and handkerchief waving continued all the time, and Mr. Dewey smiled and bowed to his admirers as he recognized them among the welcoming party.

After the Teutonic was swung from the hurricane deck of the Sloan to the main deck of the Teutonic, and Dr. Nichols, C. A. Patterson, R. H. Houghton, C. T. Thallner, E. F. Briggs, J. E. Baker, P. Bland, Auditor W. B. Pollock, Francis Smith, David Graham, F. B. Horgan, C. A. Clark, J. M. Hughes, A. Cox and W. L. Kingman.

Mr. Toney and Mr. Dutcher followed him and escorted Mr. Dewey aboard, after landing him several times which he opened and closed as he stepped on and off the ship.

He was greeted with ringing cheers from both the Sloan and the Teutonic's passengers, and an informal reception was held on the hurricane deck, to which only the officers of the railroad company were admitted.

Mr. Dewey and his son, Chauncey M. Dewey, Jr., and his daughter, Miss Margaret Dewey, were accompanied by the two Misses Houghton, who belonged to Mr. Dewey's family, came aboard the Sloan.

When the band played "America," all the Englishmen on the deck of the Teutonic stood up and sang "God Save the Queen," and reverently removed their hats. They put them on again when the band played "The Star-Spangled Banner."

The first speech Mr. Dewey had to make was to the people on the Sloan. Mr. Starn, who came down after the Archibishop, was very anxious to shake hands with Mr. Dewey, and he was greeted with a shout of "Welcome!"

He responded by saying that he had a great pleasure in being here, and that he was very glad to see the people of the Sloan.

tending to murder people without killing any. I also visited the tomb of Juliet. I've got some of that sentiment in me yet. The tomb was empty, but I saw a sarcophagus there and about 10,000 visiting cards of friends who had come to stand over the unhappy fate of Shakespeare's young woman.

I went to see the balcony too, to see where I could have a glass of Romeo in my prime. When I looked at that balcony, forty feet from the ground, I came to the conclusion that if Romeo had lived in these days, he would have been a hero. He must have been the most accomplished athlete of the period. I started to climb at 10 o'clock, and arrived at 11:30. I had to go down to see a friend, and I had to go down to see a friend.

I got to Milan at a week and the next morning, having telegraphed for a cab and a cup of coffee and a glass of wine, I saw everything that was open and opened everything that was shut.

I opened the doors of La Scala. I wanted very much to see the famous La Scala Opera House, but the man there told me that it was not open till 11 for either price or reason.

I went to see the opera, but I was not allowed to go in. I was told that I was not allowed to go in. I was told that I was not allowed to go in.

CROKER WELCOMED BACK.

Tammany's Chief Returns to Lead in the Fall Campaign.

Immensely Improved in Health by His Second Sojourn on the Continent.

The steamship City of New York, with Richard Croker, the big Tammany chieftain on board, was sighted off the Scottish Lighthouse at 9:30 o'clock this morning.

There were no more than about 500, and no political enthusiasts to meet him down the bay.

He had wired and written "I want no one to meet me," and the Wigwagites obeyed him.

His present trip seems to have benefited his health greatly. He looked brown and hardy, and his eye was brighter than of yore.

Among those who met Mr. Croker at the dock were: Bourke Cockran, Commissioner Gilroy, Charles Stecker, ex-Alderman George Hall, Paul Davis, ex-Coroner Corcoran, John F. Carroll, ex-Commissioner Pettit, Police Commissioner Martin, Civil Justice Peter Mitchell, Dock Commissioner Cram and Fire Chief Lally.

The city of New York slowly drew up at 11:41 at 1 o'clock, and the eyes of the Tammany brasses scanned the faces among the saloon passengers, but that of the big Tammany chieftain was not turned to the lower deck.

A moment later Commissioner Gilroy came on the lower deck.

"How are you, Dick?" he shouted. "Tip top! How are you, Tom?"

It was a half an hour later that the general reception committee, headed by Mayor McClellan, gathered on board in state of the "rains and regulations," that a half dozen human line officers tried to enforce.
